Verses

Nov 13

1 Peter 2:15-16

For it is God's will that by doing good you should silence the ignorant talk of foolish people. Live as free people, but do not use your freedom as a cover-up for evil; live as God's slaves.

Nov 14

1 Peter 3:18

For Christ also suffered once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God. He was put to death in the body but made alive in the Spirit.

Natalie Grant was decorating for Christmas this week and shared a picture of a very special tree. Natalie says it was the only tree she and her husband, Bernie, could afford when they were first married. 20 years later, a lot has changed. But their cheap little "Charlie Brown" tree is still standing.

When you have two young children, sometimes it's the little things that make all the difference. Love and the Outcome posted: The sun is shining & no one's puking, today's a good day. So happy to be back on our feet again! Thanks for your prayers. <https://twitter.com/loveandoutcome/status/1193686370017062914/photo/1>

It's the end of an era for We Are Messengers. Drake, the band's bassist, played his last show this past weekend. Following the final show, fellow members of We Are Messengers shared: will never be the same without you. You've left us better than you found us and we love you very much, brother. May the Lord cause His face to shine on you and may all your days be filled with the Hope of Christ. We will come to visit you for coffee soon in Atlanta. <https://twitter.com/MessengersMusic/status/1194001972241846275/photo/1>

Paul Baloche is looking for some help with medical issues. The long-time worship leader posted: I have struggled with insomnia for years. I can't remember when I've slept for more than 3 hours at a time. I'm not exaggerating. Any of you? Any breakthroughs?

A reminder from Ryan Stevenson: What comes easy won't last long. What lasts long won't come easy. Difficult roads often lead to beautiful destinations! You can't go back and change the beginning, but you can start now and change the ending!

It was snowing in Nashville in November and Riley Clemmons was SO EXCITED about it. She posted: I'm a cold-weather person 100,000%

Jeremy Camp shared the story behind "Out Of My Hands" this week. He posted: My song "Out Of My Hands" came out of a season in my life where I really battled with trust & I had a breakdown because I was holding onto things too much. This song came out saying "God, I'm sorry for trying to hold things in my own hands because I'm not in control, you're in control." And when I finally let that go, the peace and joy came instead of anxiety. <https://www.instagram.com/p/B4slrhRJOxi/?igshid=1mpmbbujmzwjz>

Congratulations to Citizenway drummer David Blascoe. David's side project Black Fuse Music was recently nominated for "Band Of The Year" and "Album Of The Year" at the 2019 Radio Milwaukee Music Awards!

Blanca has come full circle. She posted: over 10 years ago I decided to do the big chop and let my natural curls grow. I had been doing relaxers and straighteners in my hair since I was little, cause I hated having big curly hair. I finally reached a point where my hair started falling out and I knew it was time for a change... time for me to embrace who I really was. After some hard "awkward/ugly stages" of hair growth, here I finally am, all Naturalllll! (I mean, minus the highlights of course)

Ravi Zacharias is stepping down. He posted this week: It is with deep gratitude to God that we are privileged to transition the leadership of RZIM to Sarah Davis as CEO and Michael Ramsden as President. This is a new dawn for us. I will continue my role as Chairman of the Board, removing myself from the day-to-day operations. At age 73 it is time for me to focus on the three things I love most: speaking, writing, and spending time with my family. I am in good health, and with a joyful heart, I will continue to honor my calling and serve my Lord as a speaker and writer.

Quotes

Revive Our Hearts: No matter what you're going through, God is writing a story that is bigger and greater than anything you could have scripted.

Scripture Truth: One of the best gifts we can give ourselves is time alone with God.

Tim Keller: Not everyone is your brother or sister in the faith, but everyone is your neighbor.

Joni and Friends: The Bible calls us to go deep in our life in Christ. It starts with putting away a surface interest in God and fertilizing the soil of your heart through daily prayer and reading God's Word.

Matt Hammitt: Parents, your greatest job is to guide your children's passions back toward the One who made their heart.

Jordan Refuses Israel's Invitation to 25th Anniversary Celebration of Peace Agreement

When Israel announced it would be holding a commemorative event to mark the 25th anniversary of its peace agreement with Jordan, they were optimistic that their neighbor would attend. Unfortunately, Jordan refused, marking a fresh set of diplomatic problems between the two nations. The 1994 peace agreement, which allowed Israel access to the area of Naharayim, a strip of land just below the Sea of Galilee, has been undermined in recent years. In 2018, Jordan informed Israel that it would not be renewing the leasing of land under Annex 1 of the agreement, which refers to the agreed Jordanian sovereignty over Naharayim.

More than half of Americans oppose transgender athletes competing

Slightly more than half of U.S. adults opposed allowing transgender athletes to compete based on gender identity, according to a new poll. A Rasmussen Reports poll released Friday found that 51 percent of U.S. adults oppose allowing athletes to compete based on gender identity, including allowing biological male athletes to compete in women's sports. The survey also found that only 29 percent of respondents supported allowing transgender athletes to compete with the gender with which they identify, and 20 percent were undecided.

Wheel of Fortune's Vanna White Opens Up About Her Relationship with God

Wheel of Fortune's Vanna White has been a co-host of the show for 37 seasons (and counting!), but for a few weeks, she'll take on the role of the main host, filling in for Pat Sajak, who had to undergo emergency surgery for a blocked intestine. "I grew up religious," she recently told PEOPLE during a sit-down at her Beverly Hills home. "I was baptized a Baptist, and I've always had my own personal relationship with God." The South Carolina-born beauty queen, who landed the Wheel of Fortune gig when she was just 25 after moving to L.A. to continue her modeling career, said she grew up going to church and Sunday school each week.

Church votes to remove 'First Thanksgiving' tapestry

A Minnesota church has voted to approve the removal of a large embroidery that has been on display since 1974 over the belief that it's racially offensive. Plymouth Congregational Church of Minneapolis, Minnesota, voted Sunday to uphold the church leadership's decision to remove the embroidery, known as the "Churchmen in the New World." A total of 372 church members voted against reversing the leadership's decision to remove the embroidery, which was 16 feet tall and 25 feet wide, while 182 voted in favor. Eventually, church leadership decided to remove "Churchmen in the New World" due to concerns that its imagery conflicted with the church's progressive values.

Evangelical-backed Jewish charity scraps plans for Christian visitors center in Israel

An evangelical-backed Jewish philanthropy organization has scrapped plans to build a multimillion-dollar outreach center for Christian pilgrims in Jerusalem in order to devote more attention to its humanitarian efforts. The board of directors for the International Fellowship of Christians and Jews voted in recent days to forgo plans to build The Fellowship House, a project that was the brainchild of the organization's late founder, Rabbi Yechiel Eckstein.

Eckstein died last February at the age of 67 and was seen as a pioneer in the movement to bridge the Jewish and evangelical Christian communities. The Fellowship House was planned to be a seven-story building that would have served as the Fellowship's headquarters.

1,000-year-old Hebrew Bible revealed in Washington, D.C.

A rare Hebrew Pentateuch, which experts estimate was written around the year 1000 in Tiberias, has been unveiled to the public at the Museum of the Bible in Washington, D.C. It is one of the oldest intact Hebrew Bible manuscripts in existence. The Pentateuch is the first part of the Hebrew Bible and the Christian Bible, consisting of the books of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. This 10th-century Bible was acquired two years ago by the Green Collection, headed by billionaire Steve Green of Hobby Lobby fame.

Atheist Group Demands Football Coach Stop Praying with Players

A national atheist group is demanding a Missouri school district investigate two high school coaches who allegedly have prayed with players – an action the group calls illegal and unconstitutional. Head football coach Jeff Wallace and assistant football coach David Stucky of Cameron High School in Cameron, Mo., have prayed with players and discussed Bible verses with them before and after games, according to the Freedom From Religion Foundation, which also says the coaches have led players in a postgame prayer at the 50-yard line. Parents of several players, though, told local television stations that they support the coaches' actions.

Student Complains after Professor Does Not Correct Classmate Claiming 'Only Women Can Have Abortions'

A professor from Iowa State University recently received a complaint for allowing a student to claim abortion and birth control are “women’s issues,” according to the College Fix. The complaint came after a discussion in class about abortion. The student stated that the professor should have issued a correction when a classmate suggested that only women can have abortions because it “erases trans men and people who are non-binary who get abortions and/or use birth control.”

James MacDonald Posts Repentance Letter on Facebook

After being fired for making crude threats on a recording, as well as over allegations for financial mismanagement and bullying, James MacDonald of the megachurch Harvest Chapel has posted an apology on Facebook. “I was, am, and will remain very sorry for the careless and hurtful words that were illegally recorded and publicized,” the apology states. “I immediately sent written apologies where appropriate, grieving what it revealed about the state of my heart at the time, as well as the hurt caused to those who trusted us to be a more consistent example of Christlikeness. I have no excuse and am truly sorry.” MacDonald, who was a founder of Harvest Bible Chapel in Chicago, was terminated earlier this year for “engaging in conduct ... contrary and harmful to the best interests of the church,” according to Christianity Today.

Gallup poll: 87% of Americans believe in God — but only if they're asked the right way

The vast majority of Americans said they believe in God, the polling corporation Gallup revealed on Friday — depending on the how they were asked the question. Gallup found that 87 percent of respondents replied positively when asked “Do you believe in God?” When the question was rephrased — in this case, poll subjects were asked if God was “something you believe in?” — that number dropped to 79 percent. Still lower was the number of respondents who said that they believed in God when asked if they were “convinced that God exists.” Just 64 percent of respondents said yes, down from 79 percent in 2005.

Focus on the Family to Bring Live 4D Ultrasounds to 5 New Cities

Building on the success of a New York City pro-life event that drew more than 20,000 people, Focus on the Family says it will expand its “Alive” program to five cities in 2020 – all with a live 4D ultrasound image of an unborn third-trimester baby so attendees can get an unfiltered peek into the womb. The ALIVE 2020 event will take place on May 9 in yet-announced cities in Southern California and South Florida, as well as in Dallas, Chicago and Atlanta. This year’s “Alive from New York” took place in Times Square, as pro-choicers and pro-lifers alike watched a live 4D ultrasound image and even heard the baby’s heartbeat. With more than 20,000 people in attendance, it was billed as the largest pro-life event in the history of New York City.

Chinese government begins forcing citizens to submit to fingerprint, facial scans to enter churches

Some state-sanctioned churches on the Chinese mainland are being forced to require attendees to scan their fingerprints and faces before entering service, as the communist surveillance state continues cracking down on religion in the country. Parishioners at “three-self” churches, which are controlled by the state and remain one of the few official religious options for Christians in China, have reported that they are being forced to scan their fingers and submit to facial scans before being allowed to attend church. An official with a local Christian council said that anyone who does not submit their bodily data to the new systems will be barred from attending church services in the future.

Survey reveals least popular Thanksgiving food items

A new survey reveals the least popular items at the Thanksgiving dinner table. The online Harris Poll of more than 2,000 adults found 68 percent of Americans secretly dislike a classic Thanksgiving food, yet they eat it anyway out of tradition. Here's the breakdown:

29 percent of people dislike canned cranberry sauce but reluctantly eat it anyway

24 percent do the same for green bean casserole

22 percent eat sweet potatoes or sweet potato casserole even though they don't like it

21 percent eat pumpkin pie but don't enjoy it

19 percent don't even like turkey but eat it anyway

Speaking of canned cranberry sauce, the poll also found nearly half of Americans say it is "disgusting."

Two sisters raise thousands to buy 108 Thanksgiving meals

From cherry pies to turkeys and mashed potatoes, two sisters are on a mission to make sure families in need have the Thanksgiving dinners they deserve. For the third year in a row, Alex Fischer, 9, and her sister Caroline, 6, are raising money to provide meals for North Carolina families that can't afford the traditional holiday feast. Last year, the girls raised enough money for 130 boxes of food and 50 turkeys. And as of this Friday, the girls have surpassed their expectations. They have raised $2,896 for their 2019 Thanksgiving mission, which would allow them to provide 108 boxes filled with Thanksgiving meal staples and 108 turkeys.

Thanksgiving Recipe Searches Reveal America's Holiday Tastes

A new analysis based on Google search terms can help cooks across the country plan menus that guests — or at least the cooks — will like. In several states, roasted turkey and dressing were popular Thanksgiving recipe searches. Green bean casserole, long a staple on the Thanksgiving table, was a popular search, along with casserole dishes made with corn, sweet potatoes and yams. It appears pumpkin pie will make it to many Thanksgiving tables. Cooks in a half-dozen states most often looked for pecan pie recipes. Sweet potato pie and apple fritter recipes were also popular searches.

Grandmother sending 100,000 handmade holiday cards to U.S. troops

A New Hampshire grandmother is making sure that 100,000 U.S. troops stationed around the world receive holiday cards this season. She calls it the "Holiday Cards for Our Military Challenge." Laura Landerman-Garber, who is also a full-time psychologist, is spearheading the project which collects handmade cards from volunteers nationwide. She started the tradition on Thanksgiving 16 years ago, telling her family that nobody eats until they write a letter to a service member. Landerman-Garber set a goal of sending 5,000 cards in 2018, but the enthusiastic volunteer response resulted in 50,000 being mailed. Her goal for 2019 was 25,000 cards, which has turned into 100,000 cards from 32 states, as well as Guam and Canada.

Massachusetts Man Receives Answer to Message in a Bottle Sent 9 Years Ago

A Massachusetts man had the surprise of a lifetime when someone in France found a letter in a bottle he tossed into the waters of Long Beach nearly a decade ago. Max Vredenburgh was just 10 years old when he placed a letter inside of an empty wine bottle and tossed it into the ocean on August 21, 2010, he recalled to WBZ-TV. Vredenburgh never expected to get a response back. That's why he was so surprised last month when he received a letter addressed to him from a stranger in Europe. In the letter, the sender — a man named G. Dubois — said he found Vredenburgh's letter in a bottle along the coast of France, thousands of miles from where it had been tossed in the water.

Blind Vet, 98, Goes Bowling with the Help of His Friends

Every week, friends and family can find Don Wolfe at the Georgetown Entertainment bowling alley in Fort Wayne, Indiana — despite the 98-year-old veteran being legally blind. Wolfe is part of the local Club 50 bowlers group for senior citizens, who get together every Wednesday for an evening at the alley. His fellow teammates help Wolfe visualize where to roll the ball. And with his friend's help, he has a bowling average of 140. His daughter, Susan Holmes — who drives him to the bowling alley every week — is impressed by her father's determination.

Family Reunited With Dog Who Had Been Missing Since August While Waiting in Line to Adopt Cat

Over the weekend, a family in Jacksonville, Florida, had a chance reunion with their family dog, who had gone missing over the summer. The Jacksonville Humane Society explained that the family spotted their lost dog while attending a free adoption event at a local PetSmart. Although they were there to adopt a kitten, while they were in line, the father “spotted a brown and white dog being leashed to go for a walk.” Recognizing the sound of his owner's voice, the dog ran over to the family, “leaped into their arms” and started “covering them with kisses.” Dopey, who had been missing since August, came to the animal shelter as a stray dog on October 1.

Black Cat That Hilariously Interrupted NFL Game Announced as Starter for the Dallas Cowboys

The Dallas Cowboys have a new member. A black cat became an internet celebrity last week after the animal ran out onto the field of MetLife Stadium, interrupting the game between the Cowboys and the New York Giants. Now, the Cowboys are proud to add the feline football fan to its ranks. A tweet on Sunday from the team's account featured the cat in the lineup for this week's game against the Minnesota Vikings. The cat also had the blue Cowboys star photoshopped into its pupil.

Two New Oreo Flavors Are Coming in 2020

This Christmas, you can enjoy the minty sweetness of seasonal Peppermint Bark Oreos. And now Milk's favorite cookie is kicking off the New Year with two more new Oreo flavors rolling out early in 2020! Oreo announced their new flavors on Thursday via Instagram. Chocolate Marshmallow is the same ol' crumbly cookie we know and love with a decadent chocolate-dipped marshmallow filling. Caramel Coconut is a bit wackier, with a creme we can only imagine is made up of, well, caramel and coconut.

Man lost his house over $8.41 in unpaid property taxes

In Michigan, $8.50 can buy a decadent bar of fudge from Mackinac Island. A similar amount could also cost someone their house. It was $8.41 to be exact — that was how much former Michigan resident Uri Rafaeli failed to pay on his property tax bill for a house he owned in Southfield, an economically modest town of 73,000 roughly 15 miles north of Detroit. That oversight led the local county treasurer to foreclose on the house in 2014, sell it and pocket the proceeds, according to court documents in a case before the state's supreme court this week.

WWII-era ammunition bunkers could be transformed into 13,000 new homes

San Francisco's housing shortage has gotten so dire that developers are increasingly eyeing old military sites. For the last several years, the development company Lennar has been building a 12,000-home community at the Hunters Point Shipyard, the former site of a top-secret nuclear-testing facility operated by the US Navy. Across the bay, Lennar is also participating in a joint venture to add 8,000 residential units to Treasure Island, another former Naval base. Now the company has set its sights on a naval weapons station in Concord, a city less than an hour from San Francisco. The land is scattered with dozens of empty bunkers that once housed World War II munitions, but Lennar wants to turn it into a full-fledged community with 13,000 homes.

Subway just released a sandwich with green eggs and ham

"Green Eggs and Ham" was first published in 1960 and it's since become one of the most popular children's books in the world. Nearly 60 years after the Dr. Seuss classic hit shelves, Subway has decided to make a sandwich with — you guessed it! — ham topped with eggs that have green yolks. The sandwich, which will only be available in New York City and Los Angeles, features Subway's exclusive "green" eggs — the yellows in the fast-food egg patties have been dyed green with spinach

'Mouse Deer' Rediscovered in Vietnam

After being lost to science for almost three decades, this tiny deer-like species has finally been rediscovered in the forests of Vietnam. The "silver-backed chevrotain"—also known as the "Vietnamese mouse-deer"—is about the size of a rabbit. Its last recorded sighting was in 1990, but after researchers managed to capture photos and video footage of the critter in the wild, it is now the first mammal to be rediscovered on the Global Wildlife Conservation's (GWC) top 25 most wanted lost species in the Search for Lost Species.

Veterans Are Finding Peace After Taking Free Journeys

With countless US ex-service members struggling to readjust to civilian life following their deployment, more and more veterans are finding unparalleled success in alternative forms of rehabilitation and therapy. Warrior Expeditions is a nonprofit that has proven nature to be an effective treatment for veterans suffering from PTSD. The organization helps veterans overcome their trauma by sending them on longterm nature excursions lasting two to six months. The charity, which also provides all the gear and supplies necessary for the journeys, typically helps 30 to 40 veterans every year with about 10 different expeditions—all of which are facilitated at no cost to the vets.

Chicago Becomes First Major US City to Ditch Overdue Library Fees

Chicago book lovers are no longer being daunted by heaps of library late fees—and librarians are delighted to report that book returns have surged by 240%. The Windy City became the first city in the nation to do away with overdue book fees after Mayor Lori Lightfoot approved the policy in a bid to encourage literacy and educational resources amongst low-income communities. Since the policy went into full effect across the city's 81 neighborhood and regional libraries on October 1st, librarians say the policy has been instrumental in welcoming more patrons back to their locations.

Construction Worker Tricks Senior into Accepting His Offer for Free Roof Repair

When a stubborn Canadian senior refused to accept any assistance from Jeremy Locke, the compassionate construction worker played an innocent trick in order to get her to accept his help. When Locke finally reached out to MacDonald about fixing her roof for free she politely declined his offer because she did not like to accept charity. Locke then came up with a different plan of attack. He invited MacDonald to enter a raffle that his business was holding for a free roof. After the grandmother-of-four accepted one of the raffle tickets, Locke told her that she was the winner—because she was the only one who had entered the raffle. Thanks to his sweet little scheme, Locke and his crew are starting work on the roof this week, which is expected to cost his company about $9,000.

Scientists Develop Sensor to Save Kids and Pets Left in Vehicles

A small, inexpensive sensor could save lives by triggering an alarm when children or pets are left alone in vehicles. The new device, developed by researchers at the University of Waterloo, combines radar technology with artificial intelligence (AI) to detect unattended children or animals with 100% accuracy. The device is designed to be attached to a vehicle's rear-view mirror or mounted on the ceiling. It sends out radar signals that are reflected back by people, animals and objects in the vehicle. Built-in AI then analyzes the reflected signals. Development of the wireless, disc-shaped sensor was funded in part by a major automotive parts manufacturer that is aiming to bring it to market by the end of 2020.

London School Transforms Poor Performance by Giving Every Student a Violin

Despite studies that show how music lessons significantly enhance children's cognitive abilities and lead to improved academic performance, music education has been disappearing from schools in recent decades, due to reduced funding for the arts and a heavier focus on academic test results. Composer Andrew Lloyd Webber has abhorred the government cuts to music education in public schools, so in 2017, he donated £1.4 million from his own foundation to provide free music lessons to 6,000 kids. Elsewhere in the world, the Country Music Association in America has taken similar action and donated millions of dollars to public schools in Nashville, Tennessee, while in Venezuela an inspiring program gives hope to the poorest children with an opportunity to travel and perform, thanks to rigorous classical music training.

99-Year-old Expresses Wish to Meet a Penguin

Adorable pictures showing three penguins parading around an English care home came about after a 99-year-old resident expressed her wish to “meet one” in her lifetime. Great-gran Joyce Gardner couldn't believe her eyes when the two-foot-tall birds waddled into the facility three months after she made the unusual request. The visit was orchestrated by facility manager Elizabeth Stephens after she learned of Gardner's bucket list wish. She was helped by officials at Heythrop Zoological Gardens in Oxon, which houses 20 Humboldt penguins that often work on camera or at live events.

British runner completes marathons in all 196 countries

A British athlete has become the first person in the world to run a marathon in all 196 countries recognized by the United Nations. Nick Butter, 30, of Dorset, England, said he has been running marathons since he was 11 and decided to embark on his globetrotting marathon quest in January 2018 to raise money for charity Prostate Cancer UK. Butter ran Sunday in a marathon in Greece, the final country on his world tour. The runner said he ran in organized marathons whenever possible but often found himself having to chart and document his own 26.2-mile courses. Butter, whose lifetime marathon count is now 592, said he doesn't plan to slow down now that his world tour is complete.

9-year-old boy obtains Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering

Most kids are busy with other things at the age of nine, but not Laurent Simons from the Netherlands. He is the world's youngest university graduate. At the age of six, Laurent was already attending secondary school, which he completed in two years. He managed to complete his Bachelor's degree in one year, rather than the usual three years for his fellow students. Where the next chapter will lead him remains unclear, but media outlets have reported that a delegation from US universities will be visiting Laurent in Eindhoven, and possibly offer a Masters opportunity - or more.

Navy Submarine, Missing for 75 Years, Is Found Off Okinawa

A 75-year-old mystery has been solved, and the families of 80 American sailors lost at sea will now have closure: the U.S.S. Grayback has finally been found. The mystery began on Jan. 28, 1944, when the Grayback, one of the most successful American submarines of World War II, sailed out of Pearl Harbor for its 10th combat patrol. The Grayback was thought to have gone down in the open ocean 100 miles east-southeast of Okinawa. But the Navy had unknowingly relied on a flawed translation of Japanese war records that got one digit wrong in the latitude and longitude of the spot where the Grayback had probably met its end. The error went undetected until last year when an American undersea explorer asked a researcher to go through the wartime records of the Imperial Japanese Navy. The error was discovered, leading to the location of the Grayback 75 years after it went down.

Baby Abandoned In Dumpster Grows Up To Lead $62 Million Company.

Where we start in life doesn't have to determine where we'll go. Few people understand this better than Freddie Figgers. Shortly after giving birth, Freddie's mother abandoned him, leaving the baby in a dumpster. But he didn't let his rough beginning define him. In fact, Freddie has become an incredible role model for success at 29 years old. At two days old, Freddie was adopted by Nathan and Betty Figgers. At nine, he received his first computer. At 15, Freddie started his own cloud computing services. Freddie used the money from his early ventures to start Figgers Communications, a telecommunications firm now valued at over $62 million.

World's first airport therapy pig hogs

Pigs might not fly, but LiLou the therapy pig wants to make air travel less stressful. The five-year-old Juliana pig and her owner, Tatyana Danilova, are part of San Francisco International Airport's "Wag Brigade" - a program that brings therapy animals to the airport to cheer passengers up and help ease travel anxieties. Dressed in a pilot's cap and with toenails painted bright red, LiLou breezes through the metal detector at airport security and trots to the departure gates. She raises a hoof in greeting, poses for selfies and entertains departing passengers with a tune on her toy piano.
